IL CANDIDATO LEGGA AD ALTA VOCE E POI TRADUCA IN ITALIANO IL SEGUENTE TESTO:

The qualified electronic signature (QES) - or digital signature - is the result of an IT procedure, called validation, which guarantees the authenticity, integrity and non-rejection of electronic documents.

The digital signature allows users to exchange documents online with full legal validity.

All natural persons can have a digital signature: citizens, directors and employees of companies, as well as public administrations.

You can contact qualified trust service providers authorised by AgID that guarantee the identity of those who use a digital signature.

It is also possible to use the Portable Document Format (PDF) signature format: the Adobe System website illustrates the specifications of the PDF format necessary for the development of further verification products and digital signature generation.

The Agency for Digital Italy provides a guide for Affixing signatures and information on signed documents, which also illustrates the signature in PDF format (PAdES).

The use of previous versions of the Acrobat suite is strongly discouraged.
